White Paper on Sport 2007

The Dual Career

Combination of sport and education/vocational training

Communication 2011

Regarding the societal role of sport, the paper proposes to:

Consider EU accession to the Anti-Doping Convention of the Council of Europe;

Develop European guidelines on combined sports training and general education;

Develop and implement security arrangements and safety requirements for international sport events;

Continue progress toward national guidelines based on the EU Physical Activity Guidelines;

Develop standards for accessibility of sport organisations, activities, events and venues through the European Disability Strategy;

Promote women's access to leadership positions in sport.

The EAS-Network, the European Network for High Performance Sport and Education is based on institutional membership. It strives to optimize the training conditions for athlete/students and also to secure their future by making it possible for them to get an education or vocational training. By combining their sport with education they will have a platform to start from when their sports career is over, the so called "dual career".

Objectives of the EAS-Network

The EAS-Network has as its ambition

- to find and unite partners who are involved in high performance sport and education;
- to identify and exchange the best practices between countries and institutions;
- to present suggestions to the decision makers about the conditions for improving high performance sport and education;
- to act as a link between educational institutions and sports organizations;
- to develop research projects in the field of sport and education.
